

FCC,

As a pro se plaintiff who has pursued many telemarketers through the legal system via the TCPA, it has been difficult to establish several violations in court. The FCC could be very helpful by clarifying its intent on the following issues.

- 1) Do the prohibitions for calls containing prerecorded messages apply to those left on answering machines?
- 2) Do the live solicitation violation apply to messages left on answering machines after a Do Not Call Request has been made?
- 3) Should calls containing multiple violations constitute $500 per violation or a maximum of $500 of statutory damages per call?

Regarding live calls, please make the first call containing violations actionable.
